

Domaine De Joy Bas-Armagnac 1996

South West, France

The story began in 1927, when Paul Gessler decided to leave his native Switzerland to settle in Gascony, in the Gers region, depopulated area farmers after the first World War. At this time, the farm cultivated cereals, vines and bred cattle. In 1946, André GESSLER, Paul's son and his wife Véronique, settled on the farm and expanded the vineyard to 20 hectares. André, a pioneer in the region, worked on the selection of grapes varieties and participated in the creation of a group of vinegrowers in order to improve the wine quality. In 1975, Roland, and in 1980, Olivier, André's sons, settled in the estate. They abandoned cereals crops in order to specialize in viticulture. Year after year, the vineyard grew and the development of the sales of bottled wine increased. The 4th generation is running ... Vanessa and Kévin Gessler, Olivier's children, and Gael Gessler, Roland's son, settled on the estate in 2014 and 2015 !
